EL DORADO COUNTY'S ONLY DAILY NEWSPAPER

PLACERVILLE, EL DORADO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, MAY 13, 1940

NUMBER 94

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Various patriotic groups, together with a number of leaders in public affairs, have urged, during recent months, that the Communist Party should be banned by law from a place on the California ballot.

That demand, undoubtedly, has sprung from public indignation over disruptive activities of the Communists, particularly in fomenting labor disturbances and class warfare—and from revelations that the Communists are financed, in large part, with funds furnished by Soviet Russia.

This writer, however, begs to differ with those who would deny the Communists the right to have a legally constituted political party.

Great as the provocation may be—and it is great—neither California, nor any other State in the United States, can afford to disregard the fact that this nation guarantees freedom of political thought and political action. That is the very essence of Americanism, and much as we may despise Communism, any American citizen has a right to advocate it, or even to seek to establish it here, so long as he seeks to achieve his objective under the democratic processes guaranteed by the United States Constitution.

The Communists, if they are American citizens, have as much right to the ballot as Republicans or Democrats—and just as much right to a party designation, no matter how it may rankle in the hearts of real Americans.

There is another respect, however, in which California's election laws certainly should be amended—an amendment which would force the Communists out in the open, instead of permitting them to hide their identity and yet vote the Communist ticket on election day.

At the present time, according to the Secretary of State's office, there are only 820 voters registered in the Communist party in California, despite the fact that the party polled 150,760 votes for one of its candidates for state office at the last general election. In other words, the Communists for devious reasons best known to themselves, shun admission of their Communist affiliations—even though they vote the ticket when they go to the polls.

Alameda county, for example, reports a Communist party registration this year of only 77 voters; San Francisco, 133, and Los Angeles county, 440. In 20 counties in California, there is not a single voter registered as a Communist, but on election day every county will find Communists turning out to vote for their candidates.

That condition is made possible by a loophole in the present election laws, which permits any party to remain as a regularly constituted party in California, regardless of how small its registration, if one of its candidates polled 3 per cent or more of the total vote cast at the previous election.

If the law were amended to require that the registration of any qualified party must equal at least 3 per cent of the vote cast at the general election, the Communists would be forced to abandon their undercover strategy and admit their Communist affiliations, or allow their party to go into the discard. And that is at it should be. Republicans and Democrats register in the party of their choice and are proud to do so; if the Communists are ashamed to register as Communists, there must be something wrong with the party.

As a matter of fact, it is the "boring from within" policy of the Communists—their whole strategy of masquerading and working covertly and anonymously—which has made the movement suspect everywhere, even before recent disclosures turned the spotlight on Communist responsibility for labor strife, SRA corruption and chiseling, and attempts to discredit American institutions. Instead of driving the Communists underground by denying them a place on the ballot, California needs to drive them into the open—so that all may know who they are and what they are up to. California has no need to fear any political party, if it is open and above board. But California has every reason to be on its guard against a party whose leaders are in the pay of a foreign government, and whose members prefer to remain anonymous. Let them have their party, but let them own up to it.

2,000 ATTEND RESCUE FETE

Tenth Annual Community Event Held On Sunday At Litten-MacDonald Grove

Rescue's tenth annual community Mothers' Day picnic was successfully held Sunday and passed off according to schedule with an estimated attendance of 2,000 persons.

The occasion, sponsored jointly by the Rescue Grange and the Farm Center, was held as usual at the grove on the Litten-MacDonald ranch.

The program for the day followed, generally, the arrangement of events in former years, with formal exercises in the morning followed by luncheon and then a picnic sports program. A feature of the occasion this year, in addition to the exercises, was an amateur theatrical contest held during the afternoon in which several awards were presented.

The formal program opened with Dr. L. J. Anderson, of Placerville, as master of ceremonies, who led the assembled group in a salute to Old Glory, following which Harry Cridge led in singing "America."

Miss Margaret Kelly, of Kelsey, gave an able Mothers' Day address, paying special respect to the pioneer mothers, to whom the day's observance was dedicated. The Rescue 4-H Club orchestra and the 4-H Club quartet each contributed a number.

The chairman then presented Judge A. L. Pierovich, of the Amador County Court, who reviewed the early history of California and the work of the pioneers in laying the foundations of the California of today.

Secretary of State Paul Peek was the next speaker and called to the attention of those assembled the opportunities for freedom of speech, freedom of worship and freedom of the press which are held by American citizens and which are being denied the people of the world who live under other forms of government.

Cougars Lose At Lincoln

Intersectional Game On Friday Afternoon Is Decided By 8-2 Count

Baseball at the high school is over with for the season and the Cougars are putting their bats, balls and gloves away until another season along with their sixth successive Mother Lode League baseball championship.

The curtain was lowered on the 1940 season at Lincoln Friday afternoon when the Cougars came out on the short end of an 8 to 2 count in a semi-final game leading toward the Central California championship.

While the Cougars had, earlier in the week, lambasted Sonora 21 to 0 to get the league flag, it was admitted that along with the strength the Cougars displayed in winning that game, Sonora had helped out by having "a bad day."

It was the same story in reverse at Lincoln as far as the Cougars were concerned: Lincoln was performing in fine shape and the Cougars, who hadn't had "a bad day" for a long time, had one.

Band Concert Date Is Advanced To May 22

The concert previously announced by the Placerville Grammar School orchestra for the night of May 23, has been advanced to the night of May 22, it was reported on Monday.

The orchestra advanced the date one night when it was found that the May 23 engagement was in conflict with other previously scheduled events in the community.

Neighbors Object, They Move

Because neighbors objected to their pet pig, Penelope, Mrs. Catherine Schneider and sons, John, 4, and George, 2, will give up their Sea Cliff, L. I., home. The porker was raised from a shoat for its food value, but became a pet despite its subsequent bulk.

MEETINGS ON WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY AFTERNOONS AND FRIDAY EVENING WILL BE HELD AT SHAKESPEARE CLUBHOUSE WITH JANE BARTON IN CHARGE

It's startling, it's interesting, it's colorful, and above all the Homecraft Institute will provide you, and you, and you with ideas and inspiration for the coming year. Featuring the application of art to homemaking Jane Barton's three sessions this year provide the finest and most up-to-date information on modern trends of homemaking that it has been possible to obtain. Meetings which will begin and end promptly will be held from 2:00 to 4:30 p. m., with the doors opening at 1:30, on Wednesday and Thursday, May 22 and 23 and 7 p. m. to 9:30 Friday, May 24. Bring your pencil and notebook, for Mrs. Barton's programs are packed with valuable hints, ideas, and bits of information that you will want to refer to again and again.

The meetings are absolutely informal with the audience taking part in the discussions, asking and answering questions and enjoying themselves in the cordial good-fellowship Mrs. Barton's programs always produce.

Every homemaker will find many things to interest and delight her in the discussions which embrace all the household arts from good taste in selecting articles for the home to methods of making those picturesque food arrangements you see in the colored photographs. The art of home decoration will be discussed including a demonstration of color arrangement, the application of the needle arts to everyday home life, as well as table setting.

Because the Institute this year features the native Pacific arts and western home arts, among the many food demonstrations will be included Mexican and Hawaiian recipes, a new raised fruit pie, an inexpensive meat nut made exciting, a glorified bread, a really easy new kind of doughnut, vegetables and fruits in distinctive easy recipes.

Mrs. Barton has arranged a special game for this year's Institute, a "Cook's quiz." The last day of Homecraft the game will be played on the stage with those in the audience who wish taking part. A splendid attendance is expected for these two afternoons and one evening. Make your plans now to come. Invite your neighbors, and remember every session is absolutely free. The Homecraft Institute is a feature that has been brought to you through the joint auspices of the Republican and Mountain Democrat and the Pacific Rural Press.

LEGISLATURE IN SESSION

Special Meeting May Run From Two To Four Weeks, It Is Believed

SACRAMENTO, (AP)—The State Legislature reconvened in special session today to renew a controversy over the future of unemployment relief and to dispose of business unfinished at the session which opened in January.

Two separate sessions were to be held. The first, set for 10 a. m. today, consists of five new items included in a supplementary legislative call by Gov. Culbert L. Olson. The second was scheduled for noon to consider the 29 topics left over from the Governor's 64 point agenda in February.

The session may run from two to four weeks, depending on the deadlock over relief between the governor and the Republican-conservative Democrat coalition. The first three or four days will be devoted to the supplementary session.

Highlight of pre-session activity was release of two reports by the joint legislative committee on relief. They recommend an integration of all welfare and relief functions with county administration under limited state supervision and with joint state-county financing. Chairman John Phillips, Riverside county Republican senator, declared reports would be released later, all based on statewide committee hearings.

The committee endorsed creation of a new state department of employment, replacing the present employment commission, relief commission and the social welfare commission and the state agencies operating under them.

The department would have divisions of employment service, unemployment insurance, direct relief, cooperatives and aid to the aged, blind and dependent children.

ARREST REPORT ERROR NOTED

Defendant Requests Correction In Matter Of Alleged Violation

Angelo Lera, who was arrested on Friday morning under bail of $1,000 following his arrest Thursday evening at the Bank Cafe on a charge that he had violated Section 61 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control act, has called our attention to an error in the report of the circumstances claimed as leading up to his arrest.

Lera protests that it was not Franklin Siffrett, who is held on a charge of rape, to whom he sold liquor, but that it was Leo Whitney to whom the liquor was sold.

The saloon-keeper says the youth's name is "Whitney" and the officers report the youth's name as "Whitley."

Always anxious to correct any misstatement, we inquired of District Attorney Henry S. Lyon concerning the facts in the case and Mr. Lyon said that Leo Whitley bought liquor at the Bank Cafe on May 4th and that Siffrett was with him as was also "another witness, all under age."

Whitley again bought liquor at the Bank Cafe on the night of May 9th and was alone at the time, the District Attorney said, except that the purchase was made as an officer stood outside the place. The District Attorney said Whitley is under age and he also said that Lera has admitted selling liquor to him.

The District Attorney said a thorough investigation of the case is being made and that Monday morning he had taken statements from at least five others, all of whom said they had bought liquor at the Bank Cafe and all of whom are the District Attorney said, under age.

"From the investigation among CCC enrollees thus far," the District Attorney said, "all they required to buy liquor at the Bank Cafe was the money."

J. W. Caswell, state liquor inspector, said Monday morning he will request that a hearing be set by the State Board of Equalization to determine whether the liquor license involved should be revoked and District Attorney Lyon said he is checking the case to determine whether charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors might be brought.

We regret having mis-stated the facts in Friday's report.

BRITISH HALT NAZI DRIVE

First Great Battle Of War Believed In Making As Allies Support Belgians

WITH BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, in Belgium (AP)—The British army in Belgium moved into position today to face the German invaders driving toward the English Channel.

Belgian defenses were being severely tested under the weight of the enemy onslaught and the British expeditionary forces were regarded as about to engage in what appeared to be the first great battle of the war.

By UNITED PRESS
Swift counter-attacks by Allied mechanized columns stopped the German advance through the low countries today after the main Nazi army hammered into the heart of the Belgian system at Liege.

French and British reinforcements, supported by swarms of Allied airplanes, threw increasing power into the stubborn defense lines of the Dutch and Belgians and claimed important successes in battles near the Belgian town of Tondres and in South Holland.

The battle for the low countries still was a war of movement, with lines changing rapidly in the Netherlands and with the extent of German thrusts into Belgium still indefinite.

The Germans officially reported that the citadel of the Liege fortress had been captured, indicating that the Nazis were slowly pounding their way into the key fortifications at the end of the Albert canal, which they also broke near Maastricht in an advance on the town of Tondres.

But from both Brussels and Amsterdam came dispatches telling of the arrival of the British and the French mechanized columns at the front and reporting that they had met—and stopped—the German advance at least for the moment.

In Berlin, the Nazis charged that German parachutists were being (Continued on Page Four)

25th "Birthday" For Nimrods

Rod And Gun Club Will Celebrate Anniversary At Loon Lake June 15th

The "theme" for the annual mid-summer outing of the Rod and Gun Club, which will be held the weekend of June 15 and 16 at Loon Lake, will be the club's twenty-fifth anniversary.

This was announced Monday by Wallace M. Ripley, secretary of the club and a member of the committee on the anniversary observance recently appointed by President Leo Barrett.

On the committee with Ripley are A. H. Murray, Clarence Collins, Dr. Lester Rantz and William Immer. Acting on recommendations made following the mid-summer outing last year, the committee is making plans to serve a community evening dinner on June 15th and a community breakfast on the morning of June 16th. Under this arrangement, the registration fee for the outing will be $2 this year.

The committee requests that reservations for the outing be made at the earliest possible date and asks that all who plan to share in the community activities make reservations, to avoid unnecessary confusion at the outing.

"KING OF NEWSBOYS" HALTS IN TOWN FOR BREAKFAST

Cole has an extensive collection of autographs, collected in the capitals of every one of the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia, and in many old world capitals. He said he intends to present his collection, some day, to some accredited school of journalism.

Following breakfast in Placerville, the trio continued westward.

Mr. and Mrs. John Read, of Folsom Pines, are the parents of a daughter, born Friday at a Sacramento hospital.

Jane Hall, girl detective, is summoned to the home of Emery Harding on Skeleton Island, off the coast of Maine, to guard his daughter Audrey, who has been threatened in a letter, typewritten in red, demanding that Harding relinquish a valuable ruby he bought from an old sea captain, Albert Santry. He also sends for his friend, Bruce Kirby, young museum curator. Shortly afterward, Santry is murdered on the beach—then Drumm, one of the servants. The house is full of guests, any one of whom might have committed the murder. When Harding takes Jane and Kirby up to his room to see the ruby, they surprise an intruder who escapes in the dark. They find another threatening letter, discover that this and the first letter were written on a typewriter owned by Robert Castian, Harding's lawyer, and trap Castian into admitting that he was the intruder in Harding's room.

CHAPTER XV

CASTIAN'S head drooped to his chest.

"I wanted the ruby," he said dully, almost inaudibly. "I didn't know anything about it until you spoke of it at dinner tonight."

"But why?" asked Kirby.

"I need money," Castian avoided Harding's gaze. "My back is against the wall. I thought I might take advantage of some one else's plot. Some one was trying to get the ruby. I hoped I might get it ahead of him and throw the blame for the theft on the killer of Santry and Drumm."

"Drumm?" murmured Kirby.

"That's a stunner! Is Drumm dead?"

"Yes."

"And how did you know that?"

"I heard you tell Emery."

"Come now," Kirby prodded unmercifully. "You couldn't very well have heard me informing Emery in the living room at the same time that you were upstairs acting Dick Turpin in your quest for the ruby."

"No, it was the corpse," said Castian miserably. "I saw Drumm's body in the library before I came upstairs."

"I'm hanging him up, Bruce," said Kirby.

"Bright," nodded Kirby. He glanced around. "This room makes a dashed poor jail. Those French doors look inadequate. They would not hold a man who did not want to stay."

"I'll have to manacle him to the bed," said Kirby.

"With what?"

"With the pair of handcuffs I thoughtfully brought along. A detective should always be prepared."

"Where are they?" asked Kirby.

"I'll get them."

"In my brown suitcase," Jane told him.

Kirby went out.

"Bob," Harding groaned, "why in the world did you do this thing? You know I'd have helped you if you needed money."

Castian sank his head into his hands.

"No, you wouldn't, Emery. It's too much."

"How much?"

"Nearly half a million."

"What! God lord, Bob I didn't know you."

"Yes," Castian clenched his hands. "This is the end for me, Emery. A common thief—that's what I've turned out to be. But I was desperate. I speculated with firm money."

"Bob!" Harding paled.

"I lost, of course. Tried to double and win. And lost again."

"Does Adele know?" Harding asked.

Castian nodded. "She's gold. Stuck right along with me." He looked up fiercely. "But whatever I am, I'm not a murderer! I didn't kill those two chaps—I don't know who did!"

"Your typewriter was used to write Mr. Harding two threatening notes," Jane pointed out. "Anyone in the house had access to my machine."

Jane shrugged. "Well, that's your story, and you're stuck with it, I guess."

HARDING glowered at her.

"No need to rub it in, Miss Hall. You don't have to kick a man when he's down."

"I'm a policewoman," Jane retorted. "And he's a thief. I haven't the slightest pity for him. You seem to forget those whose money he used for his speculation."

"Admirably declaimed," remarked Kirby, returning just then. He motioned Castian to the big bed.

"Sit down, Castian. Hold out your left arm."

Castian obeyed listlessly. Kirby clamped will—his handcuffs to Castian's wrist and closed the other around one of the top bedposts. Castian stared at the shining steel.

"Here are the keys, Jane," said Kirby.

"Thanks," she took them and put them in the bosom of her dress. Kirby turned to Castian.

"I'll send your wife up," he said kindly.

Castian looked his thanks haggardly.

Kirby nodded to Harding and Jane. The three of them left the room, leaving Castian lying face down on the bed.

"And now," said Kirby, "for the ruby."

"You said you'd tell Adele," Harding reminded.

"And I will—in good time. By the way, I need not tell either of you, to keep silent about Castian. No sense in letting the others in on it."

"Of course," said Harding. "Now let's see this Eye of Varanus."

IN HIS ROOM, Harding went to a picture on the wall, pushed it aside, and exposed a wall safe. He twisted the disc and opened the safe.

Then, he reached in his hand and withdrew a square box. Kirby and Jane went to him with interest in their faces. Carefully he opened the box and lifted out the ruby.

Kirby was speechless at sight of the stone. It was the most gorgeous jewel he had ever seen, in all his career with the museum. A huge crimson thing, exquisitely cut, with flashing pin-points of flame darting over it. In the center, there was an inlaid emerald shaped like a bird with outstretched wings.

"Isn't it a marvel!" cried Harding. "Never—never have I had such a gem in my collection! This makes all my others look shabby! The Eye of Varanus!"

"The Eye of Varanus..." muttered Kirby. He laughed shortly and stared again at the ruby, examining it minutely from every angle. His face sobered. "I feel puny," he said, "so close to that stone."

"I know how you feel," chuckled Harding. "I had the same sensation when I first saw it."

"Isn't it for the same reason," said Kirby, "for in that stone, I see a crime over two hundred years old..."

Both Harding and Jane stared at him uncomprehendingly.

Summary: Runs responsible for.

THE SPIRIT OF

by JOHN CLINTON

In my salad days before I became a great oil executive (?) I used to think the boys at service stations had a pretty soft time of it. Just press a button and gasoline runs out of a hose! Or squirt oil in a motor and it was time for lunch.

But golly, Union Oil Company makes its men go to school. So help me, you have to graduate from a regular course before you're allowed to become a practicing Stop-Wear Engineer—which is high-class language for greasing cars according to factory specifications.

Not only that, but they have to keep a record of the mileage on your car, the date it was lubricated, what was done, what needed to be done next time, and so on. Great Scott, you have to be a book-keeper, too! But it saves customers a lot of trouble.

And as if that wasn't enough, customers who have a Stop-Wear Lubrication job also get a lot of trimmings, too—tires and running boards dressed, upholstery and inside cleaned out, battery checked, glass cleaned and car dusted off. In fact when they bring my car back to me I have to look twice to be sure they've got the right buggy.

Next time you're in a Union Oil station, ask the boys about Stop-Wear. It costs nothing to find out, and they'll clean your windshield while they're talking!

2,000 Attend Rescue Fete

The men's chorus of Folsom, directed by Louis Gearhart, then was heard and C. O. Busick, Jr., of Sacramento, spoke on the responsibilities of modern citizenship and the desirability of an active participation in citizenship.

A vocal solo by Miss Muir concluded the program.

George Sehmeyer, State Master of the Grange, had been scheduled to speak but did not arrive at the picnic until after the exercises had been concluded.

In the afternoon exhibition dances were presented by the Covered Wagon Club, of Sacramento, and by the Pioneer Quadrille Club, of Placerville. Cash awards of equal amount were presented to each group.

The amateur entertainment program also saw awards presented to all participants. The number included: selections by the Rescue 4-H Club orchestra; the Grien trio; violin and piano numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Atchison, of Salmon Falls; harmonica numbers, by Stanley Bosch, of Smith Flat; exhibition Schottische and Spanish Watz, by L. E. Wing and Katherine Hibbitt; song by Genevieve Buchanan, of Camino; selections by ladies' chorus, of Folsom; piano medley by Dick Scott, of Sacramento; selections by the Bear Mountain Wranglers; piano numbers by Norma Skinner, of Del Paso Heights; recitation "Second Minuet," by Beth Friberg, of Sacramento; song by Mr. Sheldon; exhibition polka by Mrs. Wigginsworth and Mrs. E. T. Benny; song by Velma Patman, of Diamond Springs; song by Doris Hale, of El Dorado; and a song by Dorian Del Carlo, of Shingle Springs.

New Shaft Being Sunk At Gardner Mine

A two-compartment shaft is being sunk at the Gardner gold mine near Georgetown. The property leased by E. H. Shields and W. T. Robbins, contains creeks and ravines worked extensively in early years but still offering satisfactory returns under new methods.

NOTICE

The City Council is about to make an attempt to eliminate the dust nuisance on Main Street, by washing the pavement, and requests the cooperation of the people in the effort.

Please do not sweep trash, etc., into the streets, which is in violation of Ordinance No. 527.

Hitching Posts to Honor Past OROVILLE, (AP)—This city is determined to free itself from memories of the horse and buggy days. The five remaining granite hitching posts will be used to form a protective fence around the Mother Orange tree—the first orange tree planted in California and the mother of California's present orange industry.

NEW FAST DRY MACA YEAST

Works in a Hurry—Needs No Refrigeration!

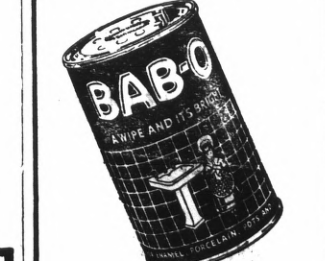

MACA is a new form of yeast for home baking—no other equals its unique combination of advantages. About two years ago, MACA was announced in a restricted district. Since then the demand has grown by figurative leaps and bounds. And this, mind you, with practically no sales effort or drive behind it.

What does this indicate? To us it seems an extraordinary endorsement of the product itself, mute testimony that housewives like it! Well, why do they like it so much? These may be the reasons:

(1) MACA is a dry yeast, yet it works fast. (2) It is keepable simply on the pantry shelf. That is, it retains its ferment quality for days or even weeks without refrigeration.

Try MACA YEAST today. You can get it at most grocers' or your store will gladly order it for you.

Eight Escape Serious Hurts As Cars Collide

Eight persons escaped serious injury Sunday when two cars came together near Camp Five, on U. S. Route 50, about fifteen miles east of Placerville shortly after noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Green, of Placerville, and the latter's sisters, the Misses Esther and Selma Gardner, of Santa Cruz, and Mike Mignun, of Placerville, were enroute to Lake Tahoe when their car collided with a machine occupied by three young men.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT BEER AND BREWING

THIS IS WHAT BEER IS MADE OF... Sunshine, water, malted grain—and hops for flavor. Converted into beer by a simple natural process. Mother Nature brews beer—that is why it is so wholesome.

BEER CAME OVER ON THE MAYFLOWER—Pilgrim records tell how the landing of the Mayflower was hastened because the Pilgrims ran short of supplies, "especially beer."

BEVERAGES FOR HOME ENTERTAINMENT. Always easy to serve, beer and ale are favored by many hosts and hostesses for home entertainment. Tasty, mild and wholesome—they are ideal beverages for moderation parties.

"THANKS FOR THE JOB!"... say 1,000,000 people put to work by beer and ale since their return. More than 100 other industries benefit from the making and sale of beer and ale.

PROVIDED BY U. S. FARMERS—25 BILLION POUNDS OF FARM PRODUCTS NEEDED BY BEER AND ALE. Since re-legalization, the brewing industry has bought this enormous quantity of produce from American farmers.

BEER AND ALE CONTRIBUTE $1,000,000 A DAY IN TAXES TO LOCAL, STATE, AND FEDERAL GOVERNMENTS. Or $400,000,000 a year! What would happen if there were no beer or ale to carry this enormous tax burden?

A NEW PLAN TO COOPERATE WITH LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS. You will want to know about beer's new plan to "clean-up or close-up" retail establishments that permit abuses. This plan is in effect in a number of states. It is being extended. Ask us for free booklet. Write: United Brewers Industrial Foundation, 19 East 40th Street, New York, N. Y.

shot as spies by the Allied forces and threatened that for every German soldier killed in that manner 10 Allied prisoners would be shot. The Germans denied charges in Amsterdam and Brussels that the Nazi parachute troops often were disguised as civilians or as clergymen.

The attitude of Italian Premier Benito Mussolini who now has some 2,000,000 men under arms and ordered bolstering of fortifications on the French frontier, continued hostile toward the Allies but there still was no definite indication that he would enter the war at the moment. British consular officials, however, advised Britons to leave Italy.
